A Sketch of the Marquis of Casa Calvo,
Governor of Louisiana
(1751-1820)

By Edna C. Sorber
and Joseph Velo

The name Casa Calvo, as indicating the interim governor of Spanish Louisiana from 1799 to 1801, Sebastián Nicolás de Bari Calvo de la Puerta y O'Farrill, is derived from his family name: Calvo de la Puerta, and the fact that he was, indeed, the Marqués de Casa-Calvo. As ad hoc governor, he may have had a short incumbency, but he served Spain, if not Louisiana, as her representative during the negotiations regarding the Louisiana Purchase, particularly those dealing with the western boundary of that land. As a result of these activities, his name occurs not only in genealogical records, but in historical accounts of the period. Unfortunately, there are undocumented statements in both kinds of materials, in some cases even contradictory ones. As a family member he is interesting enough, however, to warrant detailed study.

The origin of the Casa Calvo family is recorded as being in the town Cumbres Mayores, in the province of Huelva, from which they went to Havana in the middle of the XVI century. One of the descendants of this family was Pedro José Calvo de la Puerta y Arango, who married Catalina Josefa O'Farrill y de Arriola, mentioned in the next paragraph.

The origin of the O'Farrills goes back into legend, but it seems they came from the country of Lonford in the middle of Erin. As could be expected, the name O'Farrill does not seem to exist in Ireland. It is the Hispanicized version of the English O'Farrell, which is the corruption of the Irish O'Ferrall. One of the O'Farrills, Richard (Ricardo) came to the island of Montserrat in the XVII century. His son, Ricardo, went to Havana about 1715 as "factor de la Compañía de Asientos de Escalvos de Inglaterra," a nice name for a slave dealer! There he married a distinguished widow, María Josefa de Arriola y Garcia de Londoño, with whom he had a son and a daughter, Catalina, who was Sebastián's mother.

Even Sebastián's birth is not consistently recorded. The Havana Cathedral records list his baptism as taking place in the year 1749, undoubtedly the source for the Cuban genealogist, Francisco Xavier de Santa Cruz y Mallén, Count of Jaruco, who in his work Historia de Familias Cubanas lists this date. However, other sources, including Micheline Walsh's Spanish Knights of Irish Origin, which includes a copy of his baptismal certificate dated August 19, 1751, and recording a birth date of August 11, 1751, would seem to indicate that 1751 is a more logical date. That he went to Louisiana for the first time in 1769, at the age of eighteen, appears to substantiate this date. Perhaps his parents had a child two years earlier who was given that name, but died before this Sebastián was born. Since Sebastián occurs as a family name for many generations, it is likely that continuing it seemed important to his family. Still another source, (Documentos Inéditos para la Historia de la Luisiana, edited by Jack D. L. Holmes) gives 1754 as his birth date. Even allowing for the fact that "cadets" were included in various companies at an early age, the 1763 date for his being made a cadet, seems stretching things — nine years seems just too early in a child's life for that.

One of the most obvious errors regarding his family connections is that included in an article by Lola Legier Maduell, in the New Orleans Genesis, Vol XVI, No. 64, 1977. After listing Sebastián and his brothers, she summarizes their connections with the statement that "there is no mention in any documents in Louisiana that any of the above were married, so that the line seemingly ends here." In fact all three of the brothers, Sebastián, Francisco José and Nicolás were married, and in keeping with the customs of the time, were somewhat prolific. Specifically, Sebastián married María Luisa Peñalver y Navarrete; their daughter María Antonia married Juan Bautista Montalvo y O'Farrill; the next generation saw Ramón Montalvo y Calvo marry María de la Asunción Juana Morales y Herrera; following this line their son, Ramón Rafael José Juan Montalvo y Morales married Maria de los Dolores Carlota Fernández de Velasco y Lacoste Ramírez; the daughter of this couple, María de los Dolores Clara Ramona Montalvo y Fernández de Velasco married Emilio Angel Casimiro Velo y Lama and had as the elder of two sons José Emilio Ramón Máximo Velo y Montalvo, one of the authors of this biography.

Sebastián's father was Pedro José Calvo de la Puerta y Arango, although Raymond J. Martínez, in Pierre Georges Rosseau (sic), Commanding General of the Galleys of the Mississippi, states that Sebastián was a brother of Pedro. In fact, Pedro had a brother Sebastián, but he was not the one who became governor of Louisiana. That one was a lawyer, Hearer of the Royal Audience of Guadalajara and Crime Mayor at the Court of Mexico (Abogado, Oidor de la Real Audiencia de Guadalajara y Alcade del Crime de la Corte de México).

Another error deals with Sebastián's whereabouts following his expulsion from Louisiana as an undesirable. In a little book entitled The Governors of Louisiana, Miriam G. Reeves dispenses with his life after he left Louisiana by saying "He made Havana, Cuba his home thereafter." In fact, his comings and going were much more interesting. One account (Martinez) indicated that he went to Pensacola and from there to Madrid. Whether this was the order of events or not, he apparently did live in Madrid where an O'Farrill cousin persuaded him to join the party of Joseph Bonaparte. Although he was appointed a Lieutenant-General and held several other important positions, he had to leave Spain in 1813 when Joseph Bonaparte's regime ended. He died in Paris in 1820, having lived for the last seven years on money sent from Cuba by his daughters Catalina and María Antonia.

Perhaps as interesting as the details of his military and public offices are those evaluations of Sebastián's personality. Since ancestors so often can be little more than names on a page, knowing how a particular one affected those around him makes him seem more real. Casa Calvo's reputation suffered from his participation -- or lack of it -- in the black insurrection resulting in the murder of seventy seven Frenchmen at Fort Dauphin in Santo Domingo. His close relationship with Governor O'Reilly, including his going to Louisiana in 1769 when "Bloody O'Reilly" became so infamous, did not help any. The grudging faint praise given by Arthur Preston Whitaker in The Mississippi Question, 1795-1803, is tempered by comments made at the time by Clark, as quoted by Whitaker:

...of these five (early governors), only Casa Calvo and Morales are entitled to the slightest respect, and the respect due them is very slight. Casa Calvo was esteemed an elegant gentleman by the Creoles. This is about the measure of this greatness. He was a typical Spanish bureaucrat of the old school, adorning with graceful negligence the office that gave him his livelihood. Unoriginal, unenergetic, he at least kept his subordinates from letting the business of the government fall too far in arrears. Daniel Clark wrote that "he hates the application to business, is fond of company and amusement, affects to be frank and open in his manner, but is full of the consequence derived from the possession of rank and riches...Casa Calvo's one claim to our sympathy is the effectiveness with which he put the insufferable Morales in his proper place."

An example of the way he was brought up, was an incident involving a man named Laussat during the negotiations for the Louisiana Purchase. In October of 1803, a public scandal was caused by this Laussat bouncing out of Casa Calvo's house in high dudgeon, when he saw among the guests at a formal occasion a certain enemy of his. When it was learned that the unwelcomed individual's presence was known to Laussat beforehand, and that he had gone to the reception only for the purpose of showing off by leaving it, Casa Calvo, barely restraining from challenging him to a duel, refused to have anything more to do with him even in an official capacity. (Whitaker quoting a footnote in The American History Review, V 33, pp. 345-347).

Still in connection with the Louisiana Purchase, also in October of 1803, with reference to the takeover ceremony plan, "Casa Calvo maintained a haughty silence, refused to fix a date for the ceremony saying that he must await further orders from the court, and prepared to go off on a hunting trip to Barataria, a wild region southwest of New Orleans soon made famous by the exploits of Jean Lafitte" (Whitaker, ibid) The ceremony of transfer was on November 30. A week later Casa Calvo, who was in a more expansive mood, now that the controversy was settled, gave a great fiesta in honor of the French, which was said to have cost him fifteen thousand francs. Not to be outdone, Laussat returned the compliment with a party in Casa Calvo's honor on December 15" (Whitaker). Apparently "the blood had not reached the river," as the Spanish expression goes, between Casa Calvo and Laussat.

Several sources indicate that he had a violent temper, one going so far as to say that "his fits of anger and partiality had made the colony apprehensive lest the King might have appointed him Governor General (instead of the interim one he was)...(He apparently was) better informed than he had been when he first arrived and may not have governed as badly as one might have feared...The Commandant (Casa Calvo), either through wealth or pride, or even principle, had not been corrupt." (James Pitot, Observations on the Colony of Louisiana from 1796 to 1802, p. 21)

In sum, as José Montero de Pedro in Españoles de Nueva Orleans y Luisiana says (pp.53-64): "For my part, I would add to all that has been said, an observation which seems to me important: among all the Spanish governors of the colony, only he witnessed the most dramatic events in its history, being the only one who was present at the beginning and the end of the drama, since he was in the colony in 1769 and was there in Louisiana in 1806. Between both dates he saw events so decisive as the execution of the French rebels, Gálvez's victories in Mobile and Pensacola and the transfer of the colony to France and the United States. And let it not be forgotten, after all, that he had the fortitude to conceive the project of recuperating militarily the colony on his own." But that is another story.

We are glad to be related to him.

Matricula de San Luis de los Pinos Pinar del Río, Cuba

by
Peter E. Carr

The town of San Luis de los Pinos has its origins in a landgrant given to Juan de Evia (or Hevia), probably in 1632. The grant was for a place called Corral de San Luis. Although it has never been completely determined, due to lack of records, whether this was the land on which the town of San Luis was originally built, by December 15, 1641, de Evia was making a claim on the actual land.

By the early 19th century, the land passed into the hands of Nicolas Iglesias and his wife Juana Romero. At this time it is known as the Hacienda de San Luis. In 1827, a small village was begun within a great pine grove in the middle of the Hacienda.

In 1831, Juana Romero, by now a widow, donated approximately 25 acres of land, surrounding the small village, for the welfare and benefit of the local populace. The village began expanding and within a short time the chapel built in 1829 and named San Joaquín, was replaced by a larger masonry temple. On November 1, 1845, the church was made into an auxiliary of the parish of the nearby town of San Juan y Martínez.

At the insistence of the Bishop of Havana (La Habana), Francisco Felix Solans, a matricula or census of the townspeople was made in 1848 by Father Ramón Bentín. On January 1, 1879, San Luis and 407 square kilometers surrounding it became a municipio in its own right.

List of the residents of San Luis, Pinar de Río province, Cuba; taken on August 24, 1848, by Father Ramón Bentín, parish priest of San Juan y Martínez.

The Conquistador's Descendants in Cuba

Extracts from

Cuba: Cultura, Estado y Revolución

by

Antonio Nuñez Jiménez

translated by

Hans Christian Salas y del Valle

The great historical figure of Don Vasco Porcallo de Figueroa is not only alive to this day in Cuba's history, but more importantly, in the genealogies of numerous Cubans in the United States. Some light was finally shed in this subject in the article appearing in REVISTA's April 1988 issue, but, as acknowledged by the note in the same issue, much remains to be researched about Don Vasco. In an effort to do so, the current article has been composed, hoping that it will serve as a supplement to a growing effort is "rediscovering" Don Vasco Porcallo de Figueroa and his descendants.

---"From among all of the conquistadors mentioned, it was Vasco Porcallo de Figueroa the one who left the most Indo-Spanish descendants, many of which constituted the family nucleus of the most respected families of Puerto Principe, Camagüey. Another figure that is mentioned in history, is the Indian Juan de Argote, son of a chief of Camagüey named Camagüebax, servant of Vasco Porcallo de Figueroa, who went on to marry María Porcallo, legitimate daughter of Vasco. Juan de Argote went on to be a very cultured man and wrote about his father who "had the servitude and ostentation that was accustomed a grandee of Spain." Vasco Porcallo married with a beautiful aborigine named Tinima, daughter of a chief of Camagüey. Apart from his various illegitimate children from Indo-Cubans, like those already mentioned, who went with their father to the conquest of Florida, Vasco Porcallo de Figueroa had a numerous descendance that occupied prominent posts in the newly risen villas of Sancti Spiritus, Remedios and Puerto Principe, whose office of mayor occupied his legitimate son also named Vasco Porcallo."

pp. 25, paragraph 2

---"....Gómez Suárez de Figueroa, son of Vasco Porcallo de Figueroa and a Cuban Indian."

"Vasco Porcallo, on embarking with the governor, Hernando de Soto, en route to conquer Florida, took with him his son and on returning to Cuba, the rich colonizer ordered that the latter continue the march, leaving him the horses, arms and all necessary (supplies, etc.) for the war. The young Cuban half-caste "acted in all of the war as a very proper knight and soldier, son of such a father, serving with much promptness in all the occasions. After the Indians had killed the horses, he always went on foot without wanting to accept from the general, or any other person whosoever, a horse, lent nor given, nor any other gift of favor, even though he would see himself wounded and in much necessity. It appeared to him that all the gifts that were made and offered to him could not come near to recompense the services and benefits made by his father, in common and individual, to all of the army. The governor was distressed and anxious in pleasing and giving gifts to this knight, but his will was so strong and scornful that he never ever wanted to receive anything from anyone."

"After bloody failures the Spanish troops marched on foot and later in small ships as far as Mexico, where they disbanded."

"Gómez Suárez de Figueroa, one of 300 from the 1,000 that left from Cuba, returned to be with his father."

pp. 21, paragraph 1,2,3,4

In addition to Vasco Porcallo de Figueroa, the book also mentions the wives and children of some of the other conquistadors and colonizers of Cuba. The following is a translation of some of the paragraphs in this book:

___"Antón Recio, one of the oldest and richest Spanish colonizers whose fortune was calculated to be 20,000 ducats, married with Catalina Hernández and, not having descendants, he united with a beautiful aborigine, daughter of chief Cacanga. From this Spanish-Cuban union were born Juan and María Recio, who were legitimized by Antón and Catalina.

"The Indo-Spanish Juan received as inheritance, on top of a mixed culture, his father's sword with a gold handle, and among other properties, houses, lots, slaves and livestock."

pp. 23 paragraph 2,3

___The Hispanic conquistador Pedro de Ordaz also had a son named Alvaro de Ordaz with another Cuban Indian. After exploring the river Orinoco, he was recognized by his parents in 1536 and went on to be an important official in the viceroyship of New Spain."

pp. 25, paragraph 1

___Hernán Cortés had a daughter named Catalina with a Cuban Indian baptized as Leonor Pizarro. Catalina later married in Mexico with Juan de Salcedo, another of the Spanish conquistadors of New Spain."

pp.25, paragraph 8

___Hernán Cortés was also married, in Baracoa, with Catalina Juárez. From them was born one of the first Creoles."

pp. 26, paragraph 1

___Another of the first marriages in Cuba was that of Diego Velázquez with María Cuéllar, daughter of the accountant Cristóbal Cuéllar, sent by King Fernando el Católico as his treasurer on the island of Cuba. The wedding took place in Baracoa. On the seventh day of the marriage María died, thus leaving don Diego a widower."

pp. 26, paragraph 2

Parish Register of El Sagrario, Camagüey, Cuba

Marriages 1780-1811

This listing consists of Volume 5, of marriages, covering the years 1780 through 1811, as it appears in the original transcriptions, written by Francisco Xavier de Santa Cruz and his associates, during the 1930's and 1940's.

The list starts with the last page of Volume 4, which was copied with Volume 5 entries. This page covers the years 1752 and 1753, from March to May, respectively. The REVISTA of CGS, Volume 1:3, 1:4, 2:1, and 4:1 contain the first parts of this series of El Sagrario.

The information contained in the following list has the same format as previously used. To recap: The surname and given name are found first, followed by the sex of the individual, the date of the marriage, a column indicating whether the individual listed is the one being married (M), or is associated genealogically (G); this G follows the names of parents of other spouses. The reference numbers finish out the line. The numbers at the very end refer to the page and entry number of the original transcriptions. These are helpful in looking at all individuals identified in a given entry and may also be used for further reference in correspondence with CGS to get a printout of the entry or in using the manuscripts found at the Hialeah Family History Library.
