Louis Jean Laurent de Clouet de Piettre was born in New Orleans on the 18th of February of 1766, and was baptized in said city in the Cathedral of Saint Louis. He was later known in the Spanish world as Luis Juan Lorenzo de Clouet.

According to his military papers he started his military career at an early age on April of 1777 in Louisiana. He received the title of Colonel, in the Spanish Army, on the 2nd of March of 1820. He became a knight of the Royal Order of San Hermenegildo and the Royal Order of Isabel la Católica.

In 1819, while living in La Habana, Luis Juan de Clouet traveled to the south of the island to establish the region of Fernandina de Jagüa, and whose capital was named villa de Cienfuegos, located on the bay of Jagüa, in the province of Las Villas. On the 21st of February of 1829 he was named Lieutenant-Governor of the region of Fernandina de Jagüa.

In 1832, while residing in La Habana, he was the victim of a murder attempt, which left him seriously wounded, the consequences of which he suffered the rest of his life.

According to the documents that exist in the National Archives of Cuba, De Clouet was staying in Bordeaux, France in 1836 and in 1844 he was in Madrid, Spain. According to the Royal Orders and Decrees, of the Supreme Tribunal of War, in said Archive, he was granted a retirement pay of two thousand pesos annually on the 18th of January of 1833.

On the 26th of June of 1840, by Royal Order of the governing Queen of Spain, María Cristina de Borbón, Luis Juan de Clouet was given the title of Count of Fernandina de Jagüa, because of the important service he rendered to the Colony and the Queen in colonizing the area and founding the city of Cienfuegos. At the same time he was given a coat of arms, which is illustrated at the end of this article.

Descendance:

DE CLOUET
COAT OF ARMS

PINAR DEL RIO

by

Mayra F. Sánchez-Johnson

The province of Pinar del Río, located at the eastern end of the island of Cuba, was the least populated part of the country up until the 20th century.

While the cities sprung up every day west of La Habana, there were no Spaniards in the region of Pinar del Río in the 16th century and only a handful in the 17th century even though the region is one of the most beautiful and fertile in Cuba.

The reason for this phenomenon was that the natives of the region were very few in number. Only three groups were found: namely, the Marieles, the Guaniguanicos and the Guanacahábibes, which were very unrefined in their civilization. With so little native manpower for a farm operation, it was easier for the Spaniards to possess the land for the grazing of cattle, while they lived in La Habana with a higher degree of comfort. The cattle were taken care of by only a few cattlemen that lived by themselves in the valleys of the region. A lucrative business with no overhead worth mentioning.

The agriculturally minded Spaniards soon found out that the region was a very fertile one and started to fight for their right to own land for agricultural purposes. Since this design did not seem acceptable to the cattle owners, soon many battles of rights ensued and the powerful cattle owner living in La Habana usually won.

Things started to change when Bishop Diego Evelino de Compostela became the new bishop of the Dioceses of La Habana. In order to populate the region of Pinar del Río, Bishop Compostela started some towns and built some churches in different areas. To the very east of the region he settled the village of Guaniguanico, or Guane or Guani, and built the parish of San Idelfonso de Guane. To the very west of the region he settled the village of Guanajay, and built the parish of San Hilarión de Guanajay. In a valley by the mountain range La Sierra, Bishop Compostela built the parish of Consolación del Sur, where those cattlemen taking care of the cattle would get together and worship and socialize. By the end of the 17th century there was another village named Pinal del Río, with the parish of San Rosendo, which later became the cathedral of the province.

Since the government did not have any interest in assisting to the progress of the region, the inhabitants did their commercial transactions with the pirates and the contrabandist of the times. This kind of business was so lucrative that the towns of Bahía Honda and Cabañas were founded because of it.

Then came the new crop of tobacco, which, because of the excellent climate of the region, grew extremely well and became famous throughout the world, by means of the contraband trading, before Spain realized its value.

The first places of harvest for the tobacco industry were located in Habana province. Places like Agabama, Arimoa, Canasí, El Caney, Jesus del Monte, Guanabacoa, Santiago de las Vegas and Bejucal, became very fruitful. Spain immediately tried to control the profitable market by establishing the Royal Factory of Tobacco, which was to buy all the harvest from the farmers and use it to export at a tremendous profit. Many farmers rebelled, but many were killed and soon the rest submitted to the abuse.

In the region of Pinar del Río, this situation did not exist. Spain did not know about the tobacco growers of that region, so they were free to trade with the contrabandist without the knowledge of the government. Since the government gave them no protection or service of any sort the farmers felt free to trade their products as they saw fit.

When Felipe de Fonsdeviela became governor of Cuba on November of 1771, he realized what the situation was in Pinar del Río and soon tried to put an end to it. He established the jurisdiction of Filipina, nameing it in his honor, apart from the one in La Habana. This jurisdiction covered the region between Cabo de San Antonio to Los Palacios, comprising the municipal districts of Consolación del Sur, Consolación del Norte, Pinar del Río, San Juan y Martínez, Guane del Sur and Guane del Norte or Mantua. A census taken at the time tells us that the newly created jurisdiction had 2,617 inhabitants. With time the seat of the jurisdiction was moved to San Rosendo de Pinar del Río, since it was closer to La Habana.

In the year of 1817, King Ferdinand VII declared the abolition of the Royal Factory of Tobacco in La Habana; free trade of the tobacco crop; and liberty to grow tobacco anywhere. This declaration sounded emancipating until the crown imposed a 20% tax on all tobacco crops. This forced the farmers to grow the crop in huge amounts and made the haciendas a much more profitable way to stay in business.

While the tobacco crop was the influence for growth in the region of Vuelta Abajo, sugar cane was the influence for growth in the rest of the province.

Pinar del Río

The city of Pinar del Río has its origin in the farmland known by the name of Pinal del Río, located west of Consolación del Sur, and surrounded by land used for the grazing of cattle, in a valley between the ranges of Organos and Guamá.

Its origins are with the land granted to Francisco de Rojas in 1578 which was near Río Feo, plus the land granted to Gaspar Hernández, next to the land owned by Alonso Rojas. Since the grantees did not honor the terms of the grant, the government of La Habana took possession of the land and split it into different plots and granted them to other individuals. By 1699 there was a group of houses established in the area and, even though there was no church building, ordinances were performed. The first houses were located at the cross between the road and the river Guamá, and was given the name of Pinal del Río. By 1710 the first church was built and called San Rosendo del Pinal del Río.

When the jurisdiction of Filipina was moved to this town, the government wanted to change its name also and call it Filipina, but it was not accepted by the neighbors and the only change that took place was of one letter: instead of Pinal they changed it to Pinar.

The communication between this region and La Habana was very difficult and it took a great deal of effort from José Aguilar, Governor of Filipina, to establish mail service between the two areas.

This village had 2,318 inhabitants in the year 1819 according to the census taken then. In the year of 1867 the town of Pinar del Río, o Filipa, was given the title of City by Royal Order of the 10th of September 1867.

This city and the surrounding region owes a great deal to José Callava, who took an interest and made an effort in converting this area into a beautiful city.

Artemisa

The beginning of this city is found with a group of houses that existed in 1810. With the relocation of nine thousand people that had been victims of a tragic fire, the city grew instantly. These families were given land from the farmland of San Marcos de Artemisa and they made the area famous for its beautiful gardens and productive vegetation.

The Parish of San Marcos, which was founded in 1825, served the towns of Capellanias, Cañas, Pilar, Pijirigua, San Francisco, Pitirre and Virtudes.

In 1846 it had 638 inhabitants, and in 1879 it had grown to 7,500. It has been famous for its fertile coffee plantations and beautiful surroundings.

Cabaña

This town owns its origin to the contraband trade and the fish industry. It was established on 10 acres of land taken from the old farmlands of La Dominica and Antón Pérez de Arriba. The owner, Bonifacio Duarte gave the land for the purpose of farming.

Its first location was Embarcadero Barrios, which some say was founded in 1812, and in 1822 it was moved to its present location. Soon after the move the parish of Nuestra Sra. de Guadalupe started to be built and it was finished in 1823.

Its population was only 60 people in 1839 and 448 people in 1860.

This town was the victim of two terrible fires, one in 1825 and another in 1837, and two hurricanes, one in 1844 and another in 1846. During the War of Independence it lost its archives, a loss that would always be felt.

Consolación del Sur

As mentioned before, this town was formed by the people whose job it was to take care of the cattle that belonged to the landowners in La Habana. These people lived very distant from each other and it was a consolation to them to be able to gather for church worship. Hence the name of the town: Consolación.

The first parish of Nuestra Sra. de la Candelaria was built in 1690 by Bishop Compostela and it remained there until 1750 when it was rebuilt in its present location. In 1844 this church was destroyed and a new one built. Unfortunately the new church was destroyed by fire. In 1848 a new church was built, which promptly self destructed due to poor construction. The present church building did not get finished until 1875.

In 1819, according to the census taken by José Aguilar, the town had 2,346 inhabitants. This city became the head of its municipal district in 1866.

Guanajay

Located at the west end of Vuelta Abajo, its origins were a grant of land given to Leonor Contreras, who owned the corral "El Jibaro." She divided the land into one hundred parcels and sold them for 5 pesos each. Its climate was so excellent that Spain established a station of acclimatization for the troops that came from the peninsula.

Because of the good climate and the fertile land, people were drawn to the area and soon a group of houses were established. By the end of the 17th century, Bishop Compostela built a parish there named San Hilarión.

By the year 1841 it had 2,908 inhabitants and in 1861 it had 3,989. We also know that in the middle of the 19th century it had 122 sugar mills, and 300 coffee plantations.

This city had very good communications with La Habana, enjoying services of bus, train and telegraph.

Guane

The road from La Habana to Guane was built in 1848, greatly improving the communication between these two cities. This shorter, but dangerous road through the mountain range of Cuyaguataje, was immensely improved to make travel easier. The financial and driving forces behind the construction of the road were José Díaz, Gregorio Díaz, Isidro Pedrera, José Pérez, and Manuel Fajardo. Until then the only safe way to travel from one city to the other was through the roads called La Catalina and Paso Real. The first person to use this newly improved road was Bishop Fléix y Solans, who was making visits of the different parishes and reached Guane on the 29th of February of 1848.

This city has the oldest parish in the province of Pinar del Río, founded in 1600, when it was known by the names of Guaniguanico, Guane or Guani. It was located at the shores of Cuyaguaje, and later it was moved to the hills of Luis Lazo and San Cayetano de los Acostas. Some time later on it was moved again to the area called Sanzueñas and again to the area called Barrancas del Zarzal, where it is located until the present.

Once in its last location a parish of San Idelfonso was built that succumbed to fire soon after. The rebuilt church found the same end and so did the third church, which was burned during the war in 1896. This last building was of brick and the ruins were restored in 1901. It is now one of the best churches in the region of Vuelta Abajo.

This town was chosen to be the seat of the Filipina jurisdiction because of its central location in the jurisdiction's limits. Its name was changed to Filipina, but its original name returned when the seat of the jurisdiction was moved to Pinar del Río.

In 1776 the total population was 2,617 people: 1,647 white, 519 black, and 451 slaves.

Even though the region was a fertile one and the people hard working, the communication problems hindered the progress of the region and the population stayed in an isolated state.

Maríel

The town is located by the bay of the same name; a bay so deep and beautiful that it was famous in the 16th century. By 1762 a Naval Station was established there and ships were being built by its shores during the English occupation of La Habana.

Its first inhabitants were native Cubans, who soon disappeared, and the place was taken over by the Spaniards.

In 1804 Bishop Espada built a spacious church called Santa Teresa de Jesús that became Auxiliary Main Parish in 1806. The town became a government seat in 1819, but in 1854 it was moved to Guanajay. This greatly stopped the progress of the area until the town revived again in 1866, when it became head of the municipal district of Mariel.

San Juan y Martínez

Located near the river San Juan y Martínez and its tributary Arroyo de los Negros, its name comes from two farmlands, one San Juan and another Martínez, which grew together and became to be known as one.

In 1774 it became the capital of the province, but it lasted only two years, when it was moved to Pinar del Río. In 1847 it became a Tenancy and it was separated from Pinar del Río.

The village was founded in 1745 and in 1761 the parish of San Juan was built. In 1852 a new parish was built, and in 1863 it was rebuilt out of bricks.

In 1875 it was given the title of Villa del Dulce Nombre de Jesús and in 1879 it became the head of the municipal district of San Juan y Martínez. The town is famous for its tobacco crop's excellent quality, and it enjoys prosperity based in its trade.

Parish Register of Espiritu Santo, Habana, Cuba

Marriages 1674 to 1891

The transcription from the parish of Espiritu Santo, in the city of Habana, are of selected families that were being studied at the time by Francisco Xavier de Santa Cruz and his associates.

The first 15 books of marriages of the parish register including the years 1674 to 1891 were used in the extraction. The order of the entries was alphabetical, by the last name of one of the spouses. Since this order was confusing in our format, we have sorted them in chronological order.

The first half of this register was published in the October 1992 issue of REVISTA.

The information contained in the following listing has the same format as previously used. To recap: The surname and given name are found first, followed by the sex of the individual, the date of the marriage, a letter indicating whether the individual listed is the one being married (M), or is associated genealogically (G); this G follows the names of parents or other spouses and witnesses. The numbers at the very end refer to the page and entry number of the original transcription. These are helpful in looking at the individuals identified in a given entry and may also be used for further reference in corresponding with CGS to get a printout of the entry as it appears in the original.

SOCIETY NOTES:

I would like any information on my grandfather, who went to Hogue, Oriente, Cuba, around 1908/09: John William Glen Bishop. He went by the name of William Bishop, and would have been 38 years old in 1908. His brother Henry Francis Bishop went to Hogue, Oriente, Cuba around 1902. Henry would have been 25 years old in 1902. They are Anglicans. I do not know if they moved from Hogue at any time. Any expense in sending me any information will be refunded.
